

CHAPTER ONE

The story takes place in a gloomy forest, the most mysterious place of whole America, which feeds with legends.

Elyas Wane was a young man of 17 years old, who always wanted to find his biological family members, Since two months, he arrived in his new host family and they created a real connection, they even shared their feelings and goals leading to a big period when they all searched for his family members. He was finally on the road to visit his grandmother Yolanda. That is why he decided to stay at Yolanda's house, 310 miles away from his host family. At least that is what he thought.....

It left around 10 miles before his arriving, it was already dark outside, and the low temperature announced the beginning of winter.

Elyas wasn't even sure that it was a path he was allowed to drive on. He was surrounded by giant and eerie trees which made him feel uncomfortable. The car headlight wasn't very powerful, so he couldn't see well. That is when he suddenly saw a strange shape on his left. He directly thought it was a wild animal such as a deer. So he didn't pay attention to it.

He continued to drive but a constant fear grew up into him. He suddenly arrived to a giant mansion surrounded by a glade and he asked himself if it really was his grandmother's house, what was he saying? A castle! A very old and scary castle which really disgusted him. He couldn't believe that it was Yolanda's house and that he would have to sleep in this gloomy area. But when he checked on the map he realized it really was where she lived. When he approached the door he saw a satiric doormat with the inscription: "home sweet home". This made him laughed but he lost his cold-blood when he heard a squeak which made the mood even creepier. Elyas knocked but pushed the door which was opened without expressly. When he entered into the mansion he was surprised by the heavy silence and the darkness of the room. The entire house was empty. No furniture. What a very sweet and hospital home! Anyway he started calling for his grandmother who never answered. This young man searched every corner of the residence without finding a trace of Yolanda. He asked himself many questions about this absence but just thought she was going to arrive soon.

Outside the wind was blowing and it was raining cats and dogs. That is why he decided to stay at least for the night even if there were nobody there... Thinking Yolanda would arrive soon. He was so disappointed because he waited an all week to see her and she wasn't event there...
